

Name That Plant – Answers

1	Box		Box – ( Buxus sempervirens ) plants can be decimated by an insect, new to Britain, called the Box Caterpillar. Box plants are favourites for topiary, where plants are trimmed into shapes.
2	Broom		Broom – ( Cytisus scoparius ), grows in the wild, as well as the various, colourful, cultivated varieties.
3	Birdsfoot Trefoil		Birdsfoot Trefoil – ( Lotus corniculatus ), is a ground loving, wild plant. The flowers sometimes have an orange hue.
4	Buttercup		Buttercup – ( Ranunculus ), there are many types in the wild plant, buttercup family.
5	Bedstraw		Bedstraw – ( Rubia caesia ), there are many types in the wild, Bedstraw family.
6	Bluebell		Bluebell – ( Endymion non-scriptus ), wild, native, Bluebells (& white variety) can be found in many locations. The Imported, Spanish garden, variety are now wild too!

7	Buckthorn		Buckthorn – ( Rhamnus catharticus ), is a small bush/tree with thorns as well as orange berries and glaucous leaves.
8	Bulrush		Bulrush – (Reed Rush/ Typha latifolia ), is part of the sedge family. The tall leaves and fronds show where water lies beneath.
9	Foxglove		Foxglove – ( Digitalis purpurea ), comes in a variety of pink to white. There is also a yellow variety.
10	Water-Lily		Water-lily – ( Nymphaeaceae ), the white and yellow water-lilies are native to the U.K. The more colourful varieties are cultivated ones.
11	Crab Apple		Crab Apple - ( Malus sylvestris ), is a spiny, small tree bearing pink or white flowers and red/orange/yellow fruit.
12	Harebell		Harebell – ( Campanula rotundifolia ), has a dainty stem and flower. Harebells live in dry grasslands and heaths.